Speedwell Weather

Observation Attribute Information

Daily maximum temperature (day = d) = the highest temperature observed over a 24-hour period from 0000d to 2359d LST Daily minimum temperature (day = d) = the lowest temperature observed over a 24-hour period from 0000d to 2359d LST Daily precipitation (day = d) = the total liquid equivalent observed over a 24-hour period from 0000d to 2359d LST Note: LST = local standard time

Delivery Schedule

Delivery options include: FTP (push / pull), Speedwell web site, and e-mail

- Cleaned data (previous day) to be delivered daily by 7am Eastern Time
- National Climate Data Center quality controlled data available as monthly deliveries approximately 2 weeks after the month

Formatting

Speedwell has the ability to provide data in a number of different formats as well as provide data per user specifications. Most reasonable requests can be accommodated without the need for additional fees.

Speedwell Cleaned Data

Cleaned data is data that has been processed to fill missing values and correct erroneous observations. The end result is a dataset that is ready to be use for analysis.

Speedwell's proprietary cleaning methodologies use a mixture of automated processing to flag possible errors followed by manual inspection. In relation to the cleaning of daily data*, tests that are performed include:

- How does the obs. compare against climatology?
- How does the obs. compare against consecutive obs.?
- Is the obs. meteorologically possible?
- How do the daily obs compare with hourly data
- How does the obs. compare against the forecast?
- Comparison of the observation against observations from surrounding stations. Observations are compared against the median of a basket of proxies

Observations that are missing or declared suspect undergo further testing and manual review. In the event that a value needs to be filled or corrected a series of estimation techniques are employed including:

Hourly Temperature Observations

- median and local regression using de-seasonalized data,
- · daily estimates based upon hourly observations
- reconstructed data from other data types (eg Synoptic),
- · ECMWF forecasted values.
- direct communication with the NWS....
- · Archived local media sources
- * Speedwell also has proprietary cleaning methods for hourly data and real-time cleaning that are not discussed here.

Speedwell Recalibrated Data Sets

Speedwell Recalibrated Data Sets re-base historical data to current site location, conditions and instrumentation by adjusting for historical temperature discontinuities. This is critical to a complete understanding of the behavior of a weather reference site. Recalibration does not involve detrending

Historical Recalibration

- · Cleaned time series
- Recalibrated time series
- Supporting documentation (station overview, proxy stations, statistical results, metadata, discontinuities, valuation impact)

On-going Recalibration

- Monthly station updates alerting to developing behavior or notified (eg via NWS) changes
- Client access to web-based real-time monitoring tool allowing analysis of current performance or resent discontinuities.

About Speedwell Weather Derivatives, SWD

Founded in 1999, SWD provides software, weather data, forecasts and consultancy to the energy and weather derivative markets. SWD is the provider of the Speedwell Weather System (SWS), the pre-eminent weather derivative pricing and risk management software.

Speedwell Weather Derivatives supplies historical and real-time weather data feeds for thousands of weather reference sites across the globe. SWD has direct data supply agreements with a wide range of national meteorological services and provides a single-point of contact for the provision of official weather data to the energy, agriculture and weather derivative markets.

Regulated by the UK Financial Services Authority, SWD helps companies looking to hedge against weather risk by quantifying such exposure, structuring an appropriate hedge and placing the risk within the weather market.

With offices in the United Kingdom and the USA, Speedwell Weather Derivatives have clients in insurance, banking and energy sectors in Europe, North America, Africa and the Asia Pacific region.
